You're NOT My Friend: Understanding, Addressing and Preventing Bullying

Presented by: Cheryl Smith Turner, Ed.S, Reach TLS, LLC

Bullying behaviors can begin at an early age, disguised as targeted meanness, name-calling, teasing or various forms of aggression. When these behaviors are overlooked or dismissed, they can become habitual and damaging to the children involved, as well as those who observe the behaviors. This session will focus on understanding bullying behavior in order to recognize its signals, intervene quickly and teach children the social skills that will support healthy, respectful relationships.

Cheryl Smith Turner is a seasoned trainer and consultant who brings passion, professionalism and many years of experience as an educator to each and every presentation. As the founder of REACH Teaching Learning Solutions (TLS), an educational consulting firm with offices in Atlanta, Georgia, Cheryl provides educators with the insight and training for improved instructional strategies that contribute to a positive climate for learning. Cheryl obtained her Specialist in Education Degree from Georgia State University and her Master of Education from Emory University. Cheryl provides professional development workshops and training on a variety of topics, to include classroom management and school climate, social-emotional learning, language and literacy development, critical thinking skills, brain-based learning and support of dual language learners.
